

Marissa Jachman

Marissa Jachman has been with the Erin Levitas Foundation since the organization launched in 2017. Having known survivors – including Erin, her cousin – and the effect of sexual assault on their lives, Marissa recognized the importance of the organization’s mission and the impact it could have on preventing sexual assault and rape.

Marissa is an experienced development professional with more than 10 years of experience. Prior to the Erin Levitas Foundation, she was the Director of Development for Hillel at Virginia Tech and the University of Virginia. Prior to that role, Marissa was a Senior Associate, Principal and Major Gifts for the American Red Cross, and before that, managed annual giving for the Jewish Social Service Agency. Marissa’s skills, including the coordination and cultivation of annual giving campaigns, programs and fundraising events, combined with her passion for the Erin Levitas Foundation’s mission, have allowed her to find ways to grow the organization and expand its reach.

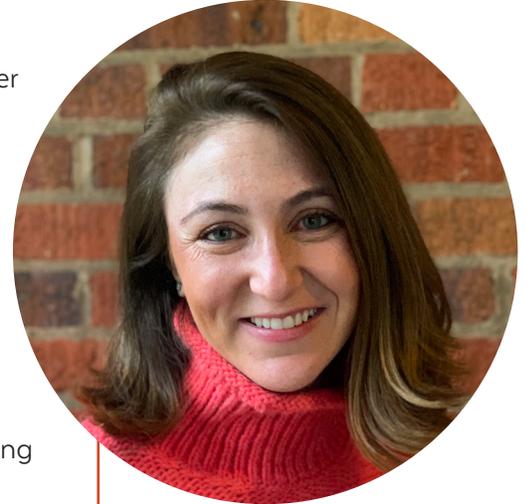

Since the Foundation’s launch, Marissa has played an integral role in establishing key programming, including the Erin Levitas Initiative for Sexual Assault at the University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law and the Erin Michele Levitas ’11 Mind, Body and Soul Empowerment Program at St. Timothy’s School. Additionally, she has created partnerships with organizations such as the Porsche Club of America and developed relationships with individuals to help drive the Foundation’s fundraising efforts.

Marissa is a graduate of the University of Delaware, where she studied mass communications with a minor in Leadership.

Now a mother of two young boys, Marissa is committed to sharing her cousin Erin’s story through the Erin Levitas Foundation and continuing Erin’s legacy by reducing the incidence of sexual assault and increasing support for those who have experienced it.
